Walking a Path of Conversion

“Turn away from sin and believe in the Good News” (Mk 1:15)

“We have everything in Jesus, we can do everything in Jesus, we hope for everything, we obtain everything from Jesus, because He chose to humble Himself for us, sacrifice Himself for us, give all of Himself for us.” Pastoral letter, Lent 1878

“O Jesus let me be inebriated with your cross, then my heart will expand, and my soul will be opened to the consolation of Christian hope and my actions will be all the more effective.” To the missionaries leaving from S. Calogero, Milan, Oct. 1884

“In prayer you will find relief and comfort during the tribulations of life; you will find the strength to resist seductions, the prudence to escape pitfalls. Through prayer you will learn how zeal for God’s cause and charity for sinners are in harmony.” Pastoral Letter, Lent 1882

“The Holy Spirit is essentially the Spirit of truth and charity. We must, therefore, live in conformity with the truth, giving things the value that is theirs, embracing what is good, fleeing evil and not letting ourselves be deceived by the foolish vanities of this world.” Homily of Pentecost, 1882

“Following Jesus and carrying the cross with him means walking in Jesus’ footsteps, entering his mind, seeing things as he did, feeling with his heart, following his teachings, conforming our will to his, letting go of ourselves into the arms of his provident love.” Pastoral Letter, Lent 1883

“Tribulations shed a healthy dose of bitterness on our present life, they lead us to detachment from all that is mortal, and they bring us the inestimable ability of seeing the nothingness of earthly greatness in comparison with what is truly great, and there is no greater grace than this.” Letter to a Cardinal undated

“Let me be inebriated by the cross! God educates through tribulations and humiliations, through sorrows and aggravations; the cross shields us, enlightens us and makes us grow. Love the cross, therefore, and seek it. Yes, love your cross and unite it to Jesus’ sufferings.” Personal Resolutions, Aug. 1893
