St. John Baptist Scalabrini

Walking a Path of Conversion

“Turn away from sin and believe in the Good News” (Mk 1:15)

“Even though the time for our lost society to return to the right path may seem far off, you especially, o faithful lay people, can hasten that longed-for time by urging the conscience of your brothers and sister to repentance, by professing yourselves, first of all, your faith in the presence of all.” Union, action, prayer, Piacenza, 1890

“It is time to be alert and be stirred into action. Whoever keeps himself/herself on the sidelines, in the midst of such feverish wicked activity, is a traitor and a coward.” Opening IV Regional Meeting of the Opera dei Congressi Nov. 1897

“St. John Chrysostom writes that the whole of Jesus’ life was an ongoing passion and martyrdom. From the beginning to the end, how much misery, how many hardships and efforts, how many persecutions and slanders, how much suffering and pain! And, after all this, how could we fail to acknowledge that penance is to our advantage and is the shortest and only sure way to our salvation?” On Christian Penance, Piacenza 1895

“My beloved brothers and sister, what does the Divine Teacher say to us: ‘Whoever does not carry his cross and follow me, cannot be my disciple.’ He also says: ‘do penance’.” On Christian Penance, Piacenza 1895

“Christ’s sacrifice and our sacrifice are equally necessary.” Pastoral Letter, Lent 1883

“I implore you, my beloved, I beseech you by the heart of Jesus Christ and for the good of our brothers, not to divide your efforts by using them each in his own way, guided only by his own will, but be all united as one: ut unum sint.” To the Missionaries for Italian Migrants in the Americas, Piacenza 1892

“Unity of thought, of intents, of aspirations, be united for the same purpose. And how can you do that? With all humility and meekness, with patience and endurance toward one another. Let each of you be calm and patient in fulfilling his duties, in forgiving each other’s faults, while striving to preserve the unity of the spirit through the bond of peace.” To the Missionaries for Italian Migrants in the Americas, Piacenza 1892
