PALM SUNDAY

Grains of Wheat from the Barns of Heaven

St. John Baptist Scalabrini

Walking a Path of Conversion

“Turn away from sin and believe in the Good News” (Mk 1:15)

“For all Christians, the Cross of Jesus Christ is the source of all hope, it is the resurrection of the dead, the hope and consolation of the poor, the pledge of eternal life, the strength of God.” To the Missionaries departing from St. Calogero, Milan Oct. 1884

“The Cross, which is foolishness to the world, will become for you the lifelong source of wisdom, and it will be more worth it for you to meditate one single hour on it, than spend long years consulting scholarly books, which only bloat our minds. Even without them and with the Cross alone one can reach the heights of the knowledge of God.” To the Missionaries departing from St. Calogero, Milan Oct. 1884

“In our afflictions, discouragements and disappointments, hold tight to your heart the Cross I gave you, and, raising your eyes to heaven, with the sentiment of true abandon into the hands of God, repeat: Fac me cruce inebriari.” To the Missionaries departing from St. Calogero, Milan Oct. 1884

“The Catholic Religion, which has led humanity to greatness by clearly revealing to it the lofty goal to which it is ordained, has also taught men and women the duties that are proportional to the sublimity of this goal. The Christian can no longer limit his or her work within the narrow limits of reason and time since it would negate his/her divine origin and noble destiny.” Annual meeting of the parish committees 1882

“To be a Christian (as everyone knows) is the same as being a disciple of Christ, and, as the ancient Fathers defined it, it is being another Christ ‘Christianus alter Christus’, or as St. Paul writes, a person clothed in Christ. For this reason in Baptism a person renounces the world, and the Spirit is poured out upon him/her.” Easter Homily 1885
