The 25th Sunday in Ordinary Time reminds us that God's ways are different from ours.

Seeking God with Humility

Today's First Reading reminds us to seek God while He is near. Isaiah urges people to turn away from sin and trust in God's mercy. He tells us that God's thoughts and ways are far beyond our own. This is a call to humility. We do not always understand why things happen, but we are invited to trust in God's wisdom.

The gospel parable also shows how different God's ways are from human thinking. The landowner pays all workers the same, no matter how long they worked. Some grumble because they think this is unfair. But the landowner reminds them that he has been generous. In the same way, God's mercy does not follow human standards.

People often struggle with fairness. They compare themselves to others and wonder why some receive more. But Isaiah's words remind us that God's ways are higher. He does not act according to human logic. We are called to trust in His mercy.

Serving Christ Above All

Today Readings also highlights what it means to live for Christ. Paul writes about his deep commitment to serving Jesus. He is ready to live or die, as long as he honours Christ. His focus is not on himself but on doing what is best for others.

This connects to the gospel parable. The laborers focus on what they receive instead of the joy of being chosen to work. But Paul's example shows a different mindset. He does not worry about what he gets. He only cares about serving Christ. This is the attitude that Christians are called to have.

Rejoicing in God's Generosity

The Gospel parable shows that even those who come to faith later receive the same reward. This challenges those who feel they deserve more. It invites them to rejoice instead of resent. God's mercy is for everyone.

It is easy to compare ourselves to others. People often feel jealous when someone else is blessed. But the parable reminds us that God is generous. Instead of being upset when others receive grace, we should celebrate His kindness.
