The 26th Sunday in Ordinary Time teaches important lessons about obedience, repentance, and humility.

Actions Show True Obedience

The Gospel for today tells the story of two sons. Their father asks them to work in the vineyard. One refuses but later goes, while the other agrees but does nothing. Jesus asks which son truly did the father's will. The answer is clear—the one who actually obeyed.

This parable teaches that words alone are not enough. Promising to do good means little if we do not follow through. Jesus shows that real obedience comes from action, not empty promises. Do our actions match our words? It is easy to say we will follow God, but do we actually live as He asks? True faith is shown in what we do, not just in what we say.

The Power of Repentance

The first reading speaks about fairness and change. Some people complained that God's ways were not fair. But God explained that each person is responsible for their own actions. If a good person turns to evil, they will suffer. But if a sinner turns back to what is right, they will be saved.

This shows the power of repentance. No one is stuck in their past mistakes. A person can always turn back to God and choose a better path. God does not hold onto our sins if we are willing to change.

The Gospel also speaks about repentance. Tax collectors and sinners had lived wrongly, but they listened to John the Baptist and turned their lives around. The religious leaders thought they were already good, so they did not change. Jesus shows that God values those who are willing to correct their ways.

Think about our own lives. Are there things we need to change? God is always ready to forgive, but we must be willing to turn toward Him. It is never too late to make a new choice and follow the right path.

Humility Leads to Honor

The second reading speaks about Christ's humility. Though He was above all, He became like us and even accepted death on a cross. Jesus showed that true greatness comes from serving others.

Humility is not easy. Many people want to be important and respected. But Jesus teaches that real honor comes from putting others first. He did not seek power or glory. Instead, He chose to lower Himself and serve. Because of this, He was lifted up.
